

About Villa Perola:

Nestled in the heart of Succoro, North Goa, lies this 100-year old Indo-Portuguese home restored by benicio homes goa.

The Developer, Mr Aqeeb Mapari, visionary behind benicio homes goa, acquired a sprawling sloping plot that housed a charming, albeit aged Goan-Portuguese residence. His ambition was to transform this humble relic into a luxurious estate that would stand as a testament to the region's rich heritage. With a keen eye for design, thanks to his background as an interior designer, Mr. Aqeeb was determined to preserve the essence of the original structure while elevating it to meet the demands of contemporary living.

In this transformation of a classic Goan house, the architect “Ms Elizabeth Kurian” expertly blended restoration, reconstruction, and modern additions to create a seamless fusion of traditional charm and contemporary luxury. The original structure, built with thick load-bearing walls and laterite stone, featured a charming verandah and two rooms, characteristic of old Goan homes with arched windows and Mangalore-tiled roofs. However, the rear part of the house had fallen into neglect and was in poor condition.

The decision was made to retain the front portion, demolish the rear, and expand the space by adding a lower ground floor and a first floor, with a staircase linking all three levels. The design now includes formal living and dining areas, five bedrooms, and a private entertaining space complete with a swimming pool, pavilion, and gardens, along with a lift and servant's quarters.

The exterior was reimagined with a new verandah and pillars in the traditional Goan style, while the interior saw the removal of internal walls in the front section to create a vast living and dining space. The original arches and windows were preserved, while a new stair lobby and lift were added, connecting the new structure and allowing natural light and ventilation to flow through the house.

The first floor was added above the old structure, housing a master bedroom suite with a terrace and a skylight over the living room. The lower ground floor now features a bedroom that opens to the pool and gardens, with a tucked-away servant's quarter. The backyard has been transformed into a luxurious entertaining area, complete with a pool, deck, and pavilion.

This restored and expanded Goan home is a perfect blend of heritage and modern living, offering both comfort and style in a seamless design.
